Evaluation Criteria (What gauges success?):

Success can be evaluated in part by how well we maintain the book collections in the libraries. This includes various tasks such as organizing books, ensuring cleanliness, shelving, sorting, labeling, and weeding out outdated or damaged books. Our goal is to make the libraries inviting and friendly places for students and all visitors.

Success is also measured by how effectively I, the Library Media Specialist, meet the standards set in the District Library Curriculum. This is achieved through maintaining anecdotal records, utilizing worksheets, conducting performance assessments, and other evaluative methods.
